

CITY OF EL PASO: RESILIENCE SUMMARY

Resilience is not the new sustainability.

- Sustainability provides a platform upon which you can build resilience
- Sustainability is often about balance, consumption and demand versus available resources
- It is difficult to “bounce back” if you are off balance to begin with.

By the way Resilience is not a “thing”.

- Energy, Water Management, Social Cohesion, Human Health, Economic Development, Opportunity and Equity, Collaborative Government and Participatory Citizenry.... these are things that build resilience and they can be measured.
- When you measure resilience you are measuring these things in different proportions based on your community

El Paso's Resilience Strategy

- Urban Development: El Paso is the Vibrant Desert City.
- Economic Development: The Opportunity of the Binational Metroplex—Clean Tech//Arts + Culture // International Relations
- Empowered El Pasoans: Activating the Agency of the People
- Resilient Governance: Collaborative. Reflective. Globally Connected
- Not Written in the abstract:
 - Informed by face to face conversations with 12,000+ El Pasoans
 - Leveraging of the Civic Design Lab Format
 - Politically Aware
 - Strategically Aligned