LITTLE READ WAGON

Every Child Ready to Read Workshops for Parents

The Little Read Wagon team completed a week-long parent workshop series followed by after-school activities at the Pre-K 4SA South and West locations. Family Specialists at both sites were very pleased by the number of parents who chose to stay and read with their children after school. Although some families returned every day, each day also brought new families with parents who do not frequently participate in school activities. The staff at the West center was so excited by the response that they are going to continue a weekly after-school reading time with blanket forts. Eventually, with the help of a volunteer who can sew, the center will have teepees like those used by Little Read Wagon.

One-time Every Child Ready to Read workshops were presented at Head Start Lackland Village, Hawthorne Academy, Dellview Elementary, Southwest Elementary, Royal Ridge Elementary, Hidden Cove Elementary, Big Country Elementary, John Glenn, and Indian Creek Elementary. Cresencia Huff presented a session at the annual Parent Conference of Parent Child Incorporated (PCI), a major provider of Early Head Start and Head Start services in Bexar County. Parents made binoculars out of cardboard tubes and were encouraged to momentarily take on their children's perspective of the world.

Services to Teen Parents

Clair Larkin served teen parents at the following high schools: Marshall (two visits), Holmes, Stevens, and Healy Murphy. At the conclusion of class, one student at Healy Murphy declared, "I want to do what you do, miss!"

Elizabeth Huber presented a teen parent workshop at South San Antonio High School. Ms. Huber is looking forward to visiting with the group three more times over the next month.

Outreach Story Time Programs

Monthly outreach story time programs were offered at the following child development centers: Healy Murphy, Tynan, Nurturing Hearts, Navarro, and Ella Austin.

Play & Learn

Due to staffing issues, the Play & Learn series scheduled to begin in January was postponed. As always, the Parks and Recreation Department staff was very supportive of the scheduling adjustment. Little Read Wagon has received many inquiries about Play & Learn and is looking forward to offering an abbreviated series at Woodlawn Lake Park Island House February 14, 21, and 28.

Community Events

Pre-K 4SA is hosting open house events at each of their centers. Due to a scheduling conflict, it was not possible to attend the event at the East center, but Ms. Huff delivered a display board and informational materials to the site the day before the event. Pre-K 4SA staff set up and monitored the display in an effort to make parents aware of the partnership with the Library. Ms. Huber was able to represent the Library at the South center's event on February 7. Ms. Huff will attend another open house at the North center in March and again the display will be monitored by Pre-K 4SA staff at the West event.

Professional Development

Ms. Huff and Elvia Franco attended the workshop “STEAM in Preschool Storytime” presented by the Texas State Library and Archives Commission at Central Library. In addition to the great ideas shared by the presenter, the full-day workshop provided an opportunity to interact with children’s services providers from San Antonio and surrounding areas. Ms. Huff also attended the Birth through 3rd Action Network Meeting hosted by P-16 Initiatives at Café College. Representatives from other agencies that serve children birth-third grade shared their work. The attendees then met in small groups to brainstorm more ways to work together in the effort to support San Antonio’s children.

Little Read Wagon welcomed another group of early childhood professionals to the “Reading from the Heart” teacher workshop on January 21. Whataburger again provided breakfast for the group. The team was happy to be back in their usual training space, the auditorium.

Little Read Wagon is happy to welcome two new team mates: Elvia Franco and Candace Ramirez. The two have already made contributions to the team by assisting at the Pre-K 4SA West events and preparing materials for various programs.

CHILDREN’S (SYSTEM-WIDE)

Children’s staff has been busy with winter programing this past month. Across the system sixteen “Bubble Wrap Appreciation Day” programs were held in late January and early February saw Valentine’s Day Parties hosted at twenty-two locations. The library’s partnership with the San Antonio Symphony, now in its third year, continues throughout the spring. To date however, fifteen library locations have welcomed symphony musicians to perform. Performances have included a wide variety of instruments including violins, violas, cellos, horns and even a bassoon and a harp. Although these symphony musicians come to the libraries to share their talents with children, adults make up almost half of the 545 attendees that have enjoyed the programs so far.

The Central Library hosted Latin Grammy Award Winner 1-2-3 Andrés on Saturday, January 28. This high-energy, bilingual musical afternoon was enjoyed by a crowd of just over 250 children and their grown-ups all of whom eagerly sang, danced, jumped and jiggled along with Andres (on guitar, clarinet and saxophone) and Jorge (on drums). Funding for the performance was provided by the William Morris Endowment.

On Wednesday, February 1, the Central Library played host to a “STEAM in Preschool Programming” workshop presented by the Texas State Library and Archives Commission. Speaker Kim Lehman shared her experience and expertise in science, technology, engineering, art and math with children’s librarians from across South Texas including a number of SAPL’s children’s staff. While many of Kim’s ideas are already a part of SAPL’s on-going early literacy programming, she provided new insights into the importance of STEAM programming and injected new energy and enthusiasm into the group.

Children’s Coordinator Viki Ash traveled to Atlanta in January to participate in the American Library Association’s Midwinter Conference. Viki is currently serving on the 2018 Laura Ingalls Wilder Award Committee which recognizes an author or illustrator whose work has made a significant and lasting contribution to American literature for children. While in Atlanta, Viki served as the moderator for a panel discussion on collaboration in the creation of children’s picture books. Serving on the panel were Caldecott Award-Winning illustrators Kevin Henkes and Erin Stead along with Laura Dronzek and Philip Stead. On the local front, Viki continues to participate in the United Way Children's Issues Council, the Pre-K – Grade 3 coalition of P-16+ of Greater Bexar County, and the advisory board of Reach Out and Read.

TEENS (SYSTEM-WIDE)

Teen Outreach Specialist Adam Tutor established a partnership with Davis Middle School that will bring gaming systems as well as a youth development program to 13-14 year olds at the institution. The partnership continued on January 24 with a group of teens, who participated in an exercise in honor of the art of service. Each individual researched a service organization of their choice, and learned about the opportunities for community service within each one of them. The character development created a positive rapport between Adam and the students, and the afternoon was balanced with game time for the teens who actively participated.

Teen Outreach Specialist Adam Tutor continued the partnership forged with the Bexar County Juvenile Detention Center, and will be visiting the teen boys in transition of the court system. He is working diligently to provide a conversation on how to transform a violent or negative path into a nonviolent and positive one through writing. Utilizing powerful figures like Martin Luther King Jr. and Nelson Mandela, he has been able to open up the teens to expression around difficult subjects, and helped imagine a brighter path for their life once they leave. On January 30, the teens wrote letters to their future self, which they received upon their departure.

Adam has also engaged with Krier Probation Center in creating a Teen Book Club, as well as designing a program that will help students phasing out of the probation center's program to enter society a healthy and active citizen. The partnership will focus on the book club for two months, and in the third month, Adam will focus on how to utilize library resources, get students their library cards, and offer them a tour of their local library branch. The leaders at both institutions are very excited for the potential this partnership has, and the impact this can have on their students both inside their programs and on the outside. The first official date has been set for the book club, and the first session will take place later in February.

Through a partnership built with the school librarian, Adam Tutor spent two days in January reaching a significant cross-section of the 7th and 8th grade students at Highlands Middle School, in order to bring more attention to the resources available in the Teen Library @ Central, the nearby Bazan Library branch, as well as highlight the great collections available at their own school library. An active approach was taken to engage with the students, where they were asked "What's your favorite character from a book you've read, or that's been read to you?", and then called upon to perform a dramatic improvisation with those characters. The students got quite engaged and it helped bring the books to life, and provided a solid backdrop for showing the opportunities available through teen programming in the different library branches.

Visiting Edison High School for Literacy Night for parents and teens on February 8, Adam Tutor signed students up for library cards and presented information on SAPL's teen programming. A great rapport was created with other library partners and staff at Edison, laying the foundation for future efforts at the high school.

Literacy & Lotería Night was a great success at Page Middle School on February 9, and Adam Tutor shared a presentation on the many resources offered through the library system with a SAPL library card, highlighting especially the efforts that parents and teens would work together on (e.g. homework help and Overdrive resources). The Teen Outreach Video brought dimension to the presentation, and some new recruits were made for the teen programming at the Teen Library @ Central.

Teen Outreach Specialist Adam Tutor began his work in supporting the Mission Library Teen Time as the former Teen Services Librarian moved into her new position at Schaefer Library. Transitions are a critical time, as teens are very sensitive to a change in personnel, as they become attached to their Teen Services Librarian. The transition was made successfully as Adam developed a rapport alongside the former Teen Services Librarian in her final day, interacting with over 20 teens and receiving their confidence. Carrying forward, Adam was able to bring unique arts and crafts, as well as gain the trust of the teens through one of their favorite activities – video game time. A warm and friendly environment was created.

Staff involved in the Inspire U Workplace Mentoring Program (part of SA2020) met with their “littles” for lunch in the Teen Library @ Central on January 30. The Littles are now seniors at Edison High School, and staff have assisted them with advice about college, applying for college, and encouraging them to think about their future.

Teen Services partnered with DreamSA for the kick off of DreamSA at the Central Library on January 25. DreamSA is an initiative from Project WORTH that features a mobile app for teens to learn all about community programs available for them to help them reach their full potential. Library Assistant J.D. Elizondo (Teen Library @ Central) served as a liaison for the event, assisting student guests and ambassadors in the Central Auditorium, Gallery and Teen Library.

During the SA Book Festival press conference on February 9, Library Assistant J.D. Elizondo (Teen Library @ Central) served as a liaison for students from Jefferson High School and their English teacher Joe Jiménez. Mr. Jiménez is a YA author of Bloodline and will appear at the upcoming SA Book Festival.

Thirty students from Fox Tech High School were treated to breakfast at the Central Library, and then learned about different library jobs/careers as they visited several departments in the library. They got to see the “behind the scenes” aspects of library work. The students then divided up for breakout sessions: the students in the medical program received a health information presentation by Lily Perez (Librarian I, Central Reference). The students in the law/political science program received a presentation on how to spot fake news by Ashlee Chavez (Central Reference Manager). At the end of the day, the students enjoyed pizza and hanging out in the Teen Library. Teen Library staff would like to thank Roberta Sparks and Jennifer Velasquez for coordinating this successful visit, Lily and Ashlee for presenting to the students, and all the staff at the Central Library that told the students about their jobs and why they work at the library.

Library Assistant J.D. Elizondo (Teen Library @ Central) and the Teen Arts Fest committee met during the reporting period to continue planning the Teen Arts Fest at the Central Library on May 6, 2017. J.D. chairs the committee, and the members are: Teen Service Librarians Stephanie Vazquez (Great Northwest Library) and Julia Pouliot (Encino Library), Library Assistants Nichole Garza (Johnston Library), Sara Ramirez (Schaefer Library), Adolph Lopez (Central Reference), Ciana Flores (Teen Library @ Central), and Marketing Specialist Regina Villalobos-Perez.

The Teen Librarians and Teen Liaisons held their regular meeting in the Teen Library at Central on February 8. Workgroups met together and worked on several upcoming Teen Services initiatives, including Teen Summer Reading, Teen Tech Week, and Mini Maker Faire.

ADULTS (SYSTEM-WIDE)

The Holocaust Learn & Remember series of programs included two featured events. Holocaust survivor Hannah Pankowsky presented to a standing room only crowd at the Central Library on January 26th. She spoke of her experiences fleeing Poland and how her family eventually immigrated to Mexico. A question and answer period followed her presentation. Hearing the first-hand account of a Holocaust survivor was clearly moving to many who stayed to speak with Hannah. The Rivard Report published "Holocaust Lectures Teach Us to 'Learn and Remember'" on 2/6/17. Film maker Isaac Artenstein traveled from Arizona to screen his documentary Tijuana Jews in the Central Auditorium on January 31st. Mr. Artenstein took questions from the audience after the film and also gave a short preview of his next documentary.

Another well attended Holocaust Learn & Remember program included the screening of "An Unknown Country: The Jewish Exiles of Ecuador" at the Central Library. Local holocaust survivor Eva Balcazar answered questions following the screening. She too immigrated through Ecuador and was familiar with many of the people featured in the film. Three branches that have the Mondopad technology held a simultaneous web conference on February 8th. Ninety-four year old Holocaust survivor David Bayer spoke from the US Holocaust Memorial Museum about his experiences fleeing the Nazis and subsequent immigration to Panama.

Haley Holmes, Coordinator of Services to Adults, attended the Texas Association for Literacy and Adult Education (TALAE) annual conference in San Antonio. She and three of the LEARN @ SAPL training officers were given scholarships by the Texas State Library to attend.

Ms. Holmes and Marcie Hernandez from the Marketing department were interviewed on Cox Radio about upcoming Black History Month and Mayor's Book Club events. Ms. Holmes was also interviewed alongside Jan Jarboe Russell, author of the Mayor's Book Club selection "The Train to Crystal City", by Mix 96.1 and WOAI Radio. Ms. Jarboe Russell and Ms. Holmes were interviewed live on News 4 WOAI by anchor Randy Beamer.

CENTRAL LIBRARY

The Play & Learn and Toddler Time programs, presented by Assistant Manager Shannon Seglin, were very well attended this month, demonstrating their enduring popularity with families of young children. An example of this was a parent's story about her daughter emulating "Miss Shannon" at home, singing the familiar songs and rhymes from Toddler Time and instructing her mother to listen while she pretended to read stories to her. Manager Kate Simpson presented the programs once in Ms. Seglin's absence, using her well-planned fantasy theme to create a magical experience complete with a blanket fort castle, regal dress up clothes, dragon puppets and magical shadow play with a projector. Ms. Seglin put her own spin on the system-wide Bubble Wrap Appreciation Day program by incorporating exploration of the five senses into the program. She developed activities like bubble wrap “roads” which popped when children rolled toy cars over them and the unique sensory experience of manipulating playdough using bubble wrapped rolling pins. Early literacy fun continued with dinosaur stories, excavation of dinosaur toys from “dirt” (coffee grounds playdough), and imaginative play with dinosaur puppets and oversized eggs. In celebration of the San Antonio Stock Show & Rodeo kicking off, Ms. Seglin crafted farm animal programs during which toddlers played with a menagerie of farm animal puppets, and cared for chickens and roosters in a pretend play chicken coop while gathering plastic eggs from the nests. February fun was rounded out with Valentine’s Day programs centered on the color red. Ms. Seglin shared stories about hugs and kisses and children made a heart craft to take home.

The highlight of family programming this month was the electrifying performance by Latin Grammy Winner 1-2-3 Andrés, made possible through the generosity of the William Morris Endowment. Well over 100 families joined in the bilingual musical fun, learning the geography of the Americas all while dancing and singing in the positive, uplifting environment created by 1-2-3 Andrés. He took time to pose for pictures afterwards with his legion of new San Antonio fans.

Ms. Seglin and Ms. Simpson presented Family Fun programs to families with children of a wide range of ages. Ms. Seglin played off the idea of sizes while celebrating books and stories one Saturday in which she read oversized books, and then lead the group in crafting their own mini-books to take home and fill with stories or musings. One week she focused on the idea of peace, reading stories that illustrated this concept of kindness and tolerance. The children then explored the watercolor medium, painting peace signs onto paper plates. She encouraged the families to reflect upon the books they shared and identify examples of what peace meant to each of them, and contribute their thoughts to a collaborative collage of peaceful messages. Puppets were the theme one week, when Ms. Simpson read stories from pop-up books, featuring characters that appeared to talk or yawn due to their lift-the-flap construction. Afterwards, children made their own paper hand puppets and played with the department’s collection of plush puppets against a projected backdrop. Ms. Simpson used Valentine’s Day as an inspiration to feature classic children’s books with the theme “Books We Love.” An array of popular picture books was displayed and the families chose their favorites for sharing during story time. Afterwards, parents and children worked together to make Valentine’s cards for their loved ones and helped decorate the oversized story room tree with paper spring flowers and green heart “leaves.” Ms. Simpson also contributed to the Dial A Story program this month, reading Marvelous Cornelius by Phil Bildner.

The Central Children’s Dept. hosted several tours for young children this month. Ms. Simpson spent time with 2 groups of preschoolers from Respite Care of San Antonio when they visited the Central Library for stories, book browsing and collaborative art activities. Ms. Seglin introduced kindergarteners from the Suburban School to the Library one fun-filled morning, as they enjoyed a special story time and crafting session, followed by an exploration of the juvenile collection. Children’s Dept. Librarians partnered with Martha Loewen, Interim Reference Dept. Manager, to lead a group of docents from the McNay Art Museum on a tour of the art and architecture of the Central Library. Ms. Simpson and Ms. Seglin shared their unique expertise in connecting children to the art on display with the group.

Ms. Seglin visited the Advanced Learning Academy’s Parents’ Breakfast and presented library services for children and adults to the group. She also delighted the children at Madison Square Child Development Center with songs and books about animals this month.

Library Assistant Mary Elizabeth Fernandez created an eye-catching display celebrating the San Antonio Stock Show & Rodeo in which she highlighted a wide array of selections from the juvenile non-fiction collection – from farm animals to charro traditions to biographies of western heritage figures.

Ms. Seglin visited the Schaefer Branch Library with the SAPL Mentorship Program group and got a behind the scenes tour of the new location, set to open in March.

Ms. Simpson attended an all day workshop presented by the Texas State Library where she learned actionable plans and tips for incorporating STEAM concepts into preschool library programming. She also participated in a meeting of the Birth Through 3rd group coordinated by the P16 Plus Council of Greater Bexar County, at which educators and administrators from a variety of institutions discussed best practices and brainstormed ideas for tackling issues facing the San Antonio educational community.

TEENS

Mondays with J.D. Elizondo (Library Assistant): During the reporting period, J.D. facilitated Eclectic Electric music programming. In addition to the music and video gaming aspects of the programming, J.D. facilitated kinetic programming via ping pong games. Teens got their exercise and got to engage in some friendly competition.

Tuesdays with Ciana Flores (Library Assistant PT): During the reporting period, Ciana hosted Science & Tech Tuesdays, during which teens designed 3D models to print and printed models found online. On February 7, students in a Robotics program at Travis Early College High School gave a presentation to other teens in the Teen Library about robotics and their winning robots from a competition. On the same day, a couple of girls from Providence High School used the green screen in the Teen Library to make a commercial for a class.

Wednesdays with Kathleen Fordyce (Librarian II): On Wednesdays, teens pick their favorite video or board game and engage in friendly competition with their peers. During the reporting period, teens have enjoyed playing the WiiU and PS4 games, as well as board games like Chess, Jenga and Apples to Apples.

Thursdays with Regina Almanza (Library Assistant): Thursdays in January, teens celebrated holidays and engaged in creative, tasty, and instructive programs that they suggested and planned. Teens asked to bake a cake they could frost. Using a quick and easy recipe, teens gathered ingredients, waited for the cakes to cool, made frosting and frosted the cakes using piping bags and tips that created decorative borders and flowers. Teens then used nail polish, Mod-Podge, and papers to decorate paper boxes. To celebrate Chinese New Year, teens made fried rice, fulfilling a nutritional component by using brown rice, carrots, green onions and peas. They also drew and colored pictures on Shrinky Dinks paper using Sharpies, baking them and creating one of a kind trinkets for keychains. For a fun trick, teens used gelatin and soda to fill a soda bottle to create a gelatin shaped like a soda bottle.

The results, while amazingly imaginative, were not entirely tasty, prompting teens to suggest ideas for tweaking the recipe. For a pre-Valentine's Day night, teens made an "egg in a heart," a dish where they cut out a heart shape from a slice of bread, toasted it in the electric skillet, and then placed a cracked egg in the heart cut out. Teens also used paper, brads, clothespins and cardboard to create cute heart grabbers. During craft and snack making sessions, teens watched movies. Afterwards when Thursday programs have concluded, in a non-competitive environment, teens played video games. Pictures from Thursday programs as well as other Teen Library and system-wide programs can be found at <http://www.flickr.com/210teenlibrary>. Some nights, photos and mini-videos are also posted to Teen Library's Instagram account: <https://instagram.com/210teenlibrary>.

For a Saturday afternoon craft, teens watched movies while creating roses shaped out of candy. Soaking Jolly Ranchers candies in hot water softened them enough for teens to use their gloved hands to shape the candies into petals, wrapping them around a lollipop stick. The technique took some time for some teens to master, but the try was worth it, since even if they couldn't shape a rose, any failed attempt was still sweet. Literally.

On January 25, a group of 8th graders that participated in the DreamSA kickoff event at the Central Library received a tour of the Teen Library and enjoyed hanging out in the area. On January 31, a group of students from Legacy Christian Academy reserved the computers in the Teen Library for catalog/database instruction and research. On February 9, Coordinator of Teen Services Jennifer Velásquez provided an architecturally focused tour of the Central Library for students in an architecture program at Stevens High School. On February 9, a group of students from Jefferson High School received a tour of the Central Library and the Teen Library, as well as catalog and database instruction. Two community centers brought groups of teens to the Teen Library to use computers and participate in teen library programming. Groups of teens from the the George Gervin Center, Roy Maas, the Juvenile Detention Center, and the Selena Center made regular visits during the reporting period.

LANDA

As January rounded out, the Landa branch continued its weekly early literacy programming for young children: Baby Time, Toddler Time, and Story Time. In the biweekly Baby Times, Children's Librarian Jasmin Salinas continues to share songs in other languages with the parents and babies. Currently, Landa's Baby Time groups are learning a song in Spanish and one in American Sign Language to share new words, sounds, and literacy tools with the youngest of patrons. Toddler Time also continues to be a fun program that focuses on animal sounds with the addition of new puppet friends and colors as the children play an opening game with Landa's children's librarian to search for an elusive snowball hiding under colorful mittens. One of the highlights of Story Time at Landa in January has been the love of books exhibited by the children that attend. After a program filled with stories, singing, and dancing, the children will often ask Ms. Salinas to read them even more stories from her stack rather than play with the toys put out for them to enjoy.

Starting in February on Fridays, Ms. Salinas also added some new programs for children ages 2 to 5 years old. First, Ms. Salinas with the assistance of Library Assistant Rebekah Corley hosted a Music and Movement program that focused on rhyme, rhythm, coordination, listening to directions, and large motor development skills like jumping. Then, Ms. Salinas and Ms. Corley delivered a Pajama Party Story Time filled with bedtime songs, stories, and rhymes. At the end, the children enjoyed a fun craft, a dark and sparkly fort, and bubbles as they had a chance to play at the end of the program. Four families that attended mentioned to Ms. Corley their thanks and praise for the fun-filled pajama story time at Landa.

Children's Librarian Jasmin Salinas and Library Assistant Rebekah Corley also created a building challenge night for Tween Time. In January, Ms. Salinas and Ms. Corley divided the tweens in to two groups and challenged them to a balloon tower building contest. The tweens dove into the project with one group winning by an inch! However, the fun didn't really begin until after the towers were completed when during the cleanup portion of the program the balloons were taken outside to pop.

Tweens along with Ms. Salinas and Ms. Corley stomped, sat, squished, and popped all the balloons making cleanup an extra fun part of the evening. Tween Time in February focused on sugar! Ms. Salinas created a candy sushi station for the kids to create their own edible masterpieces. Ms. Corley setup a marshmallow pop decorating station that allowed the kids to add eyes, hair, and faces with edible markers onto marshmallows. The thirteen tweens that attended, a Landa record, enjoyed the sugar craze and made some fantastic creations.

On Friday, February 10, Ms. Salinas also turned the meeting room into a craft zone and allowed kids to make anything they wanted around the Valentine's Day theme. Supplies of all kinds were put out from paper hearts to construction paper, pipe cleaners, craft sticks, and markers. Kids were then given the instructions to be creative. Everyone made something different with most families spending over 20 minutes in the craft room creating. Hats, wands, cards, and puppets emerged from the room in the hands of their creators. Parents and children enjoyed having the chance to relax and enjoy the unstructured process of making art!

Lego and Minecraft clubs continued in January and February with fun challenges that included building statues of their favorite characters. The Minecraft kids built towering statues of Harry Potter, Spongebob Squarepants, and I-Ballistic Squid. The Lego Club kids made Luke and Leia Skywalker and Batman. In the last Minecraft club, kids built towers to the sky and one of the youngest to attend actually began planning and building his own city. At four years old, he created a city with places to work, live, and eat. He also added an art museum, a hospital, a cemetery, and a library. He talked with Ms. Salinas about the layout of his city, describing the building materials he was using; including their strengths and weaknesses. It was a great example of how Lego Club and Minecraft Club focus on "talking" as a literacy skill for kids.

In February, Ms. Salinas also visited the University Presbyterian Child Care Center for her monthly story time visit. In the youngest classroom, the children shouted out animal sounds along with Ms. Salinas while the toddler classroom practiced their counting. The kids in the preschool class once again requested silly stories and laughed along with Ms. Salinas as she read stories about a hungry snake and a silly looking cat.

Also in February, Ms. Corley and Manager Kiyanna Stephens visited Roger Elementary School for their parent's literacy event. They signed up families for library cards and talked up children's programs offered at Landa Library. The big hit of the evening were Magnet Tiles for the kids to build and play with while their parents filled in library applications! Ms. Corley reported that over 100 people stopped by their table to learn more about library services.

Landa Library Teens continued into the New Year with strong enthusiasm and leadership! Facilitated by Teen Liaison Rebekah Corley, teens implemented a variety of programs for themselves and peers ranging from classic movie nights, designing their teen space, and even learning to make balloon animals. An especially successful event was a teen implemented class on homemade slime! This one brought all involved in a challenging collaboration of science, art, and messy hands.

The group also collaborated with Ms. Corley on their goals and ideas for upcoming Teen Nights! Planning is in progress for future Cooking Club meetings, events incorporating learning about various world cultures, and Teen Tech Week projects.

Homework Hangout, Landa's program for dedicated independent study, continued to be a valuable resource for middle and high school aged students. Facilitated by Ms. Corley and Landa

Children's Librarian Jasmin Salinas, this service continued to receive positive feedback from students and parents alike.

Landa Adult Programming has two on-site book clubs that meet monthly. Reader's Ink Book Club was started by retired SAPL librarian Randolph Blakeman several years ago and continues with on-going as well as new members. This month the group read Tom Brokaw's The Greatest Generation, an inspirational account from interviews with World War II survivors. The Landa Mystery Book Club continues to grow with fourteen in attendance this month. Their selection was James Lee Burke's thriller set in Montana, In the Moon of Red Ponies. Burke is a book club favorite.

Landa hosted Howie Nestel who told "Uncle Gene's Story" as part of SAPL's Holocaust: Learn and Remember events. There was a good-sized audience to hear this very inspirational speaker talk about his beloved uncle and share his remembrances of life in a concentration camp during World War II. Shirley Morrison was back once again for a marathon DIY beading class. Participants were all enthusiastic and are asking for another session.

Adult Services Librarian Karen Sebesta took her outreach book club to The Village at the Incarnate Word which meets the first Wednesday of every month. Their selection this month was John Kralik's 365 Thank Yous, a memoir about a man's life change that was initiated by writing thank you notes to people throughout the year. The group enjoyed this selection and would recommend it to other book groups. The Kenwood Senior Center celebrated an early Valentine's Day (since the next visit falls after February 14) by creating Valentines and doing some very intricate adult coloring sheets. Karen also brought them some interesting facts about the celebration of Valentine's Day.

And saving the best for last, SAPL and the Landa Staff welcomed Landa's new manager Kiyanna Stephens in early February. She is young, dynamic, and has a broad vision for Landa and the community. Welcome, Kiyanna!

The program again saw significant attendance, with 43 adults and five children stopping by the Mercado.

On February 7, ten people attended the MCC Book Club's lively discussion of Room by Emma Donoghue.

PAN AMERICAN

Starting in the New Year, the Pan American Branch Library began offering weekly E-Device clinics on Wednesdays by appointment. Assistance was primarily with SAPL downloadable content from Overdrive e-books. Staff were available to assist with different operating systems such as iOS and Android.

Pan American hosted teen time every Wednesday night, where teens got the opportunity to partake in a variety of crafts and activities. Teen time is an opportunity for young adults to get together after school or in the evening. During the program, teens get to pick from a variety of activities from games to anime or just hanging out with their peers. It's not always fun and games though, some of the activities require teens to use their brains to solve problems or work as a team to accomplish a goal.

The monthly writer's group at Pan American continues to be a success. Attendees can share ideas and inspiration as well as get tips on the writing process. The group members are dedicated to their craft and welcome input from their peers. In addition to the writer's club, the branch also offers a Lego Club for the children. Not to leave out the parents and other adults, Pan American started weekly game nights in January.

Rhonda brings to the branch an energetic attitude and professional experience from working a variety of positions at SAPL throughout her career. The branch staff is excited for her to join the team.

PARMAN

In the reporting period Children (and parents) explored creative expressions in Story Times at Parman. Children's Librarian Carrie Vance has been encouraging parents to take a hands-off approach when working with their children and their art projects. In January, the children explored making authentic art from shredded paper, beads, water colors and even instant coffee. The use of instant coffee as a paint was a huge hit with the children, and a surprise for all due to the high sheen of the paintings when they dried.

Ms. Vance also coordinated a tour with one of the Mothers of Preschoolers groups in the area. Twenty four children and their grownups arrived for a short story time that opened the library world up for many of the grownups in attendance – 14 of the 16 adults in attendance had never been to the library before. Two of the attendees asked to arrange tours for other groups they work with.

Library tutoring coordinated by the teen librarian Ms. Marisa DeBow is being appreciated by students and parents in the Stone Oak community. Time Out @ Teen Time continues to be the perfect place to decompress. This month teens had the opportunity to make conductive gloves, yarn octopuses, fun buttons and strawberry crepes. natural fit; and that when any organization has their community as a number one priority- they will find success with each other.

The teens gave a variety of justifications including: getting to meet authors and other teen library and reading enthusiasts; promoting literature, a love of reading, libraries and librarians; and the ability to "use knowledge gained from reading in real life situations and learn new information that you didn't have before in personal situations." Teens attending Library Palooza will receive a copy of Lauren Oliver's new flip novel Replica that the author will sign at the event.

Teen librarian Rae Downen attended the Texas Computer Education Association's annual conference in February. THOUSAND OAKS

Children have been exploring titles on current and past 2x2 lists prepared by the Children's Round Table 2x2 Committee. This list is comprised of 20 titles selected from over 600 published during the past calendar year. The titles are selected based on appropriateness and appeal to children from the age of 2 through 2nd grade. The new list is published each January. The Northeast Senior Center Book Club started the year with a discussion of The Girls of Atomic City, by Denise Kiernan. Facilitated by Theresa Ybarra, the group discussed life in 1940's America, the mindset of the employees and residents of Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and the implications of their work on the atomic bomb. Issues were raised regarding the patriotism of the workers and whether or not such a secretive project could successfully take place today. Readers appreciated the well-researched historical account of the time.

The selection for the Thousand Oaks Thursday Book Club in January was Delicious by Ruth Reichl. Several of the readers had positive comments about the book and even one daring participant went home and baked a delicious gingerbread. She then shared her homemade treat with the Thousand Oaks Library staff. The heirloom gingerbread recipe was mentioned in the novel and its rich spices included fresh grated ginger, cardamom and black peppercorns. A rousing time was had by all, and tea and cookies were consumed by the enthusiastic crowd.

Later that afternoon, Ms. Braeuler helped host Symphony at SAPL with violist Allyson Dawkins performing and sharing information about her viola. Library Assistant Elvia Ramos related the come and go weekend craft to music with shakers being made out of decorated paper plates with beans inside. Ms. Braeuler coordinated a visit of George Gervin Academy students to Tobin at Oakwell with 100 students coming for a story time visit the week of February 6 – 10.

Manager Tracey Knouse delivered the donations to the San Antonio Food Bank where she learned that 40 pounds of canned goods equates to 31 full meals for hungry folks in San Antonio.

WESTFALL

Westfall's VITA sessions have been filling up very quickly and volunteers have been assisting as many as 50 taxpayers each session. Volunteers are at Westfall every day except Tuesday and Thursday through mid-April to assist taxpayers who make less than $60,000 annually.

Learn Center Training Officer Michelle Dangler Rickman assisted with the job fair at Thousand Oaks Branch Library and is preparing for Westfall's job fair, which will be February 25. Michelle also attended the Texas Association for Literacy and Adult Education at La Cantera Resort and Spa February 2 - 4. More than 1,000 school administrators, educators, students and other professionals from around the state were in attendance. Michelle also participated in a webinar on trauma informed services and how libraries should be involved. The webinar discussed the effects of trauma on society and how libraries are directly impacted by the trauma. According to presenter Elissa Hardy, finding awareness of the effects of trauma on our community leads to more compassion and allows us to dive into our own problem solving skills more effectively.

Westfall's teens have been busy with lots of activities. They held a camp-out in the meeting room by turning off the lights, watching spooky movies and making s'mores. But they had to use a toaster oven instead of a campfire. Teen Librarian Megan Stanley took about 70 books to students at Jefferson High School's book group. The topic was End of the World, so the books were apocalyptic in theme.

Manager Sherrie Hardin took lots of fiction written in Russian to Madonna Apartments, a San Antonio Housing Authority neighborhood. A number of residents there are Russian immigrants and they prefer reading in their native language. Ms. Hardin also facilitated the Third Thursday Book Discussion Group's talk of Five Presidents: My Extraordinary Journey with Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford by former Secret Service agent Clint Hill with Lisa McCubbin. She also secured books and prepared questions for the Stranger Than Fiction book group which discussed The Fire This Time by Jesmyn Ward.

Children's Librarian Imelda Merino visited Wilson Elementary School to talk about library services.

The Mobile Mercado Farmers Market is at Westfall the first Tuesday of each month. The truck is a combination mini-grocery store and a food truck. Seasonal fresh fruits and vegetables are available and there are cooking demonstrations and food samples.
