Mr. Shannon replied that they were not changing any rules for urban corridors but if there was an issue of eminent domain and a significant hardship with the terrain or highway was proven; they could move the billboard elsewhere. He noted that city staff would review hardships and that applicants could appeal their decision to the Zoning Board of Adjustment if they were not satisfied. Councilmember Treviño noted the importance of communication and asked that information regarding plan reviews be provided to the Council Office and affected neighborhoods.

Councilmember Nirenberg asked of the notification process that would be considered by the Neighborhoods and Livability Council Committee.
